DYSPEPSIA

Is that misery experienced when suddenly made aware that you possess a diabolical arrangement called stomach. No two dyspepties have the same predominant symptoms, but whatever form dyspepsia takes

The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing is certain no one will remain a dyspeptic who will

It will correct Acidity of the Stomach, Expel foul gases, Allay Irritation, Assist Digestion and at the same time

Start the Liver working and all bodily ailments will disappear.

"For more than three years I suffered with Dyspepsia in its worst form. I tried several doctors, but they afforded no relief. At last I tried Simmons Liver Regulator, which cured me in a short time. It is a good medicine. I would not be without it."—JAMES A. ROANE, Philad'a, Pa.

Interesting Comments on the News of a Day by a Woman with No Glasses.

The man on the seat ahead of her was reading a newspaper, and after getting settled in the midst of her parcels and bundles and regaling herself with a pinch of Scotch snuff, she leaned forward and said:

"I don't git much time to read the papers nowadays, but I allus like to hear what's goin on. Is there any news in pertickler?"

"Nothing very exciting," he replied, as he sized her up out of the corner of his eye. "Here's an item about a wife killing her husband."

"Shoo! How'd she do it?"

"With an ax."

"Law me! Wall, she probably stood it and stood it until she couldn't stand it no more. It's awful how some husbands do carry on. Anything else?"

"Here's an item about a woman in this state who drove her husband to suicide by nagging him."

"Shoo! Jest kept jawin and complainin from mornin till night, I suppose, and he finally got so tired that he took pizen?"

"No, he hung himself."

"Wall, I don't blame her a mite. He was probably shiftless and lazy, and it spilt her temper to see things goin down hill. She'll have a chance now to git married to a better man."

"And here's a case," he continued, as he pretended to read, "of a wife and mother who ran away from home with a tin peddler, leaving a husband and several children behind."

"Shoo! Does it give the pertickler?"

"It says she is supposed to be a little flighty in her head."

"Wall, she ain't a bit flighty. She done jest right. I know purty nigh how it was. She had all her housework to do and them young 'uns to take keer of, and the husband was probably findin fault all the time on top o' that. She jest slaved and slaved till she couldn't slave no more. Some folks think a woman can bear everything, but they can't. I 'spose the youngest child was purty small?"

"Only seven months old."

"Wall, she probably hated to leave it, but it would have been weaned in a couple of months anyhow, and the father kin bring it up on a bottle. It'll serve him right if it squalls half the time. Anything else?"

"Why, I notice that a woman has just married her fifth husband, and isn't fifty years old yet. Her neighbors are so indignant that they talk of driving her away."

"La! Got her fifth, eh? Wall, if I was that woman the nayburs might talk and blow and be hanged to 'em. I ain't fifty years old, nither, and I'm a-livin with my fourth, and don't keer how soon he goes. I was powerfully deceived in him."

"Do you say that you'd marry again if he should die?"

"Sartin, and I wouldn't wait over six months, either. Some folks think a woman has no rights, but she has, and she's a fool if she don't assert 'em."

"This may interest you," said the man, as he turned the paper over. "A St. Louis doctor declares that the feet of women are gradually but surely growing larger, and that in the next fifty years to come every one of them will want a No. 7 shoe."

"Shoo! He says that, does he?"

"Yes'm."

"And he's a doctor?"

"Yes'm."

"Wall, he hain't told no startlin news. I've been wearin No. 7's ever since I was a gal sixteen years old, and I've got the smallest foot of any woman in our town as it is. I did feel kinder sorry when I diskivered that I'd left my spectacles on the kitchen clock shelf at home, but if that's all the news the papers kin rake up I guess I hain't missed nothing!"—New York World.

Care for Musical Instruments.

Neither a piano nor an organ should be left open at night, or habitually when not in use. The changes of temperature are very hurtful to the tone of any instrument, and especially the gathering of dampness, which not only interferes with the tone and quality of the strings and reeds, but is very likely seriously to affect the works. Pianos in particular should be kept in as even a temperature as possible, since they are much affected by alternations of heat and cold, dryness and moisture; if thus exposed they require very frequent tuning, and are not satisfactory in action or tone. Care is also equally desirable in regard to other stringed instruments—the violin family, banjos, guitars and like. In all of these the strings are much affected by exposure to dampness and great changes of temperature. All fine instruments should be habitually kept in cases lined with baize or flannel.—Good Housekeeping.

A Murder Explained.

"Jule," remarked Brutus as he strolled into the great Cæsar's tent, "did I ever tell you of the fight I once had among the Allobroges?" Gets off a long, windy tale involving the single handed slaughter of eleven ferocious barbarians.

"Brute, my boy," remarked Cæsar solemnly when he had finished, "I admire Gaul, especially Transalpine Gaul, but still I must say that you remind me of a harp shattered by the lightning of great Jove."

"How so?" inquired Brutus, unwarily.

"Because you're a blasted lyre," answered Cæsar. And from that day forth Brutus began to meditate on the Ides of March.—Yale Record.

Advice from Confucius.

That the use of tea was universal very early in Chinese history is borne out by one of the maxims of Confucius, the wisest man of China, when he said: "Be good and courteous to all, even to the stranger from other lands. If he say unto thee that he thirsteth give unto him a cup of warm tea without money and without price."—Philadelphia Times.

RELIGION IN CHILI.

A COUNTRY IN WHICH RELIGIOUS FERVOR IS STRONG.

Delicate Women Have Been Known to Crawl on Their Hands and Knees to Places of Worship—Poor and Rich Bow Together in Devotional Exercise.

No people in the world are more devout than those of Chili, and surely if self inflicted punishments, fasting, confessions and donations will take one to heaven, a vast throng (though mostly women) will go up from that little republic. It is no uncommon thing for delicate females to go to the shrine of worship upon their knees, over the flinty stones that tear the flesh, and then beat themselves with leather straps tipped with nails. The bodies are often thus punished until the blood runs profusely, and when the poor creatures can do no more they deposit all the money and trinkets of value upon the altar and go home happy, though suffering.

A few years ago no man dare ride through the streets of any Chilian city on Good Friday. Even the cars were not allowed to run; all business was stopped and no sound of wheel or hammer or human labor disturbed the religious silence. In these days of liberalism, although the people still dress in deepest mourning and most of the shops are shut, the cars and public carriages go about as usual and some business may be transacted.

The strangest and most impressive part of holy week came on the night of Good Friday, when a long line of female worshipers, led by the dignitaries of the church and joined by a very few men, crept to the cross on their knees. They first knelt in the front yard of the church and slowly crawled on their knees through the gravelly courts, up through the long hall, until they reached the image of the crucified, and each in turn kissed the wounded foot.

So solemn was the scene that many Protestants and persons of no particular religious belief, who came merely to look, joined in the worship. It brought rich and poor, aristocratic and plebeian, on the same level—servants and ladies of high degree, both wrapped in mantas, side by side.

CELEBRATING HOLY WEEK.

Later, there was a weird torchlight procession, led by the chanting priests in black robes, followed by a concourse of people who bore in the midst upon their shoulders a company of life size images representing all the saints, each clothed in flowing velvet robes. Among them was the blessed Virgin, arrayed in white tarlatan, attended by four living maids of honor—little girls with long curls, artificial wings on their shoulders, and garlands of flowers upon their heads. The holy sepulcher was represented by a large box draped in white muslin, half revealing a recumbent figure. All these were surrounded by devotees with lanterns and candles, and followed by an unwholesome rabble, running, jostling and pushing on every side.

On Saturay morning, the last of holy week, especial services were again held in all the churches, which were still gloomily draped in black. The priests entered in procession, and there was a great deal of extinguishing and lighting of candles, tinkling of bells and other ceremonies whose import we did not comprehend, until 10 o'clock, when suddenly the black veils which shrouded the altars were drawn aside, displaying the shrines ablaze with candlesticks and abloom with flowers; a peal of triumphant music burst from choir, organ, band and bells, and the glad cry arose, "Christ is risen."

The cannon of the fort thundered the joyful tidings and the national ships-of-war re-echoed the sound. Closed doors flew open, vehicles once more thronged the streets and business was resumed with its accustomed noise, while the excited populace, as if the tragedy of nearly 1,900 years ago were just enacted, vented their pious rage upon effigies of Judas Iscariot. Poor Judas was made to suffer every punishment that human ingenuity could invent—he was drowned in the sea, dragged through the streets, burned at corners, hanged, impaled and torn piecemeal on the hillsides.

VOWS OF ENTHUSIASTS.

Many devout Chilians take a vow that if the Virgin will do certain things for them—such, for example, as to restore a sick friend to health—they will perform this or that ceremony, or dress themselves or their children in a certain color for a certain length of time. One day I met in the streets of Santiago a handsome, middle aged lady, dressed entirely in white woolen, and upon expressing a surprise at her unsuitable choice of color was informed, in a tone of profoundest respect for the matron in question, that she was the wife of a well known wealthy citizen, who, having lost several children, vowed that if her last babe was spared she would dress not only it, but herself, in nothing but white for ten years. The child lived and the vow is being religiously fulfilled.

There are many other pious observances in Chili that attract the foreigner's attention. There are hundreds of good people who have a custom of expiating their sins for a whole year by a nine days' period of penance during Lent. In every town there is a house provided expressly for the purpose and in charge of priests, where the penitent spend their nights alternately praying and thrashing one another. Those who are too infirm to use the scourge punish themselves by reciprocal pinchings. The lights are extinguished, and at a signal from the priest the penitents change places and begin scourging the nearest sinner with a vim that cannot leave any doubt of the sincerity of their contrition.—New York Advertiser.

BURIED IN SLIDING SAND.

Willing Neighbors Pull a Man Out of a Sand Pit After Four Hours' Work.

While a gang of men from Sandwich were at work on Chamberlain & Son's cranberry bog one of them, James Dalton, shoveling in a sand pit, was thrown and buried to his shoulders by a landslide on a face of sand some thirty feet high. In spite of very exact and emphatic warnings the man was standing with his back to the bank and his barrow between him and the exit. The falling sand buried the barrow, and the man's right leg was bound fast over the left handle. The other bog hands ran to the rescue, but aside from uncovering the barrow and delivering the man's right leg, could not move him an inch. The danger was that more sand might slide and bury its victim alive, for there were already cracks in the sand visible and one or two huge boulders which might come down any moment. The boulders had just been disclosed by the sand slide.

It was soon apparent that without more and wiser help, the man would certainly perish by exhaustion or be smothered. The neighbors were raised. Among the new comers was Daniel Lee, of the beach who afterward said he had once seen a man buried in a well and by common consent, as the only man who dared to have a plan where an error might cost the trapped man his life and perhaps the lives of others, he was allowed to direct. First of all he called for a long plank. One was brought from the bog, and carefully placed some three or four feet above the man below, and between him and the sand face, and across the sand bank.

Then he ordered planks to be sawed some five feet long, and these to be placed upright inside the horizontal plank and facing in and toward the bank and a man to hold each plank steady and to stand to it if another slide came. He then ordered short oak and pine limbs to be cut and put in the sand above the upright line of planks, to catch and stop the sand which momentarily was sifting down. The whole structure was then braced at each end by joist and plank, and served as rude sort of shield. Then, with the men holding the planks, the others tried to dig the man out. His left foot and lower trunk seemed held as in a vise. A shovelful of sand taken out seemed instantly replaced by the sand sifting down from the hill. Hands were then used instead of shovels and some stones under him removed. But it was slow, hideous work for the strongest nerved. And now came the crisis.

The rifted earth bank above with the pine trees on it was moving—was sliding down. A shout among the men to hold fast—a second or two of the terrible drift of earth—a second shout—and the deadly mass stood still. The plank barrier so far had saved. But the man in peril had now been some four hours in a situation, the peril of which he knew, not expecting, as he afterward told "the boys," but that he was to be carried home in a box, and though bearing up bravely, was very much exhausted. He must be released speedily or perish. Of all traps, sand under such conditions is the most relentless we ever set eyes upon. Every attempt of strong men to pull the man out failed. A new way was suggested by Mr. David Ellis.

A strong rope from one of the bog screens was brought. A stray woman's shawl, left by some cranberry picker on the bog, was found and used to muffle the sharpness of the rope against the man's flesh in hauling, the rope was fastened tight under his shoulders and then, as God willed, with strong men assisting and others holding at the plank barrier, and the sand hill settling down every moment, the man was pulled out of his sand grave—not a bone broken, not a scratch! The place where the man lay four hours in deadly peril was the next day found covered with four feet of sand.—Cape Cod Independent.

An Ancient Hot Bath.

Remains of ancient hot air baths or sweat houses still exist on the island of Rathlin, on the northeast coast of County Antrim, Ireland. The Rev. D. B. Mulcahy describes one he visited on the farm of Widow McCurdy, in the townland of Knockans. Mrs. McCurdy said she had used it fifty years ago, and that it had been used by the islanders from time immemorial. A heap of ashes lay outside the doorway showing it had formerly been heated by a fire.

Mrs. McCurdy said further that previous to a bath a fire was kindled inside, and when it was sufficiently heated the ashes were swept out. The people came to be cured of rheumatism. There was a hole at the top to let out the smoke and admit light. A stool or a scraw on the floor was used to sit on or stand upon in a stooping posture.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Aurist's Prescription for Earache.

"I am afraid I have greatly interfered with my own practice," said a celebrated aurist, "by giving the following advice to many of my friends: At the first symptoms of earache let the patient lie on the bed with the painful ear uppermost. Fold a thick towel and tuck it around the neck; then with a teaspoon fill the ear with warm water. Continue doing this for fifteen or twenty minutes; the water will fill the ear orifice and flow over on the towel. Afterward turn over the head, let the water run out and plug the ear with warm glycerin and cotton. This may be done every hour until relief is obtained. It is an almost invariable cure and has saved many cases of acute inflammation. The water should be quite warm, but not too hot."—London Tit-Bits.

What One Man Saw.

Blake, a distinguished English painter, who was liable to disordered sensations, described a fairy funeral which he seemed to have witnessed. He was walking in his garden one night, when he apparently heard a low and pleasant sound, and at length saw a procession of creatures of the size and color of grasshoppers bearing a body laid out on a rose leaf, which they buried with songs and then disappeared.—Youth's Companion.

MORE OF THE CHILEAN QUESTION.

The President has transmitted another message to Congress on the Chilean question. With this he transmits the additional correspondence between this Government and Chile, which comprises Minister Montt's note to Blaine, the reply of Blaine to the same, and a dispatch from Egan, American Minister to Chile, transmitting the response of Periera, Chilean Minister of Foreign Affairs, to the ultimatum of January 21.

The message says the response of the Chilean Minister of Foreign Affairs, withdraws with acceptable expressions of regret, the offensive note of Matta, and also the request for the call of Egan. It also treats of the assault upon the Baltimore sailors at Valparaiso in a conciliatory and friendly manner. There is a good prospect of the differences between this Government and Chile being adjusted upon terms satisfactory to the United States by the usual methods, and without special powers of Congress.

Minister Montt, in his note to Blaine, states that from the antecedents which the government of Chile was able to collect of the occurrence of October 16, which is sincerely deplored, began by a quarrel among drunken sailors, and assumed considerable proportions in consequence of the locality in which it occurred. Senor Montt says it was far from being the purpose of his government to act in any manner at all offensive to the President of the United States or any member of his Cabinet, and that Matta's note, if rightly interpreted, admitted of no such construction.

Secretary Blaine, in his reply to Senor Montt, comments on some recitals and corrects some mistakes in his note. Mr. Blaine admits that he somewhat vehemently asked why the Chileans did not demand Egan's recall, instead of constantly disparaging him. He concedes, too, that the government of Chile had a right to ask that a change be made, provided that it assigns a reason, as the United States twice had occasion to ask Great Britain to recall her Ministers and in each case had given a reason why the Minister had ceased to be useful. Blaine denies what Montt asserts, that he informed the Chilean Minister that there would be no war, and this information Montt communicated to his government.

It now looks as if Harrison and Blaine were suspicious of each other, and that while Blaine knew the real feeling in Chile, Harrison did not, and upon learning that he had been duped, sent his message to Congress though the Chilean answer to his ultimatum, which he now says is satisfactory, had been received in Washington at the time. He was loaded for Chile and was found to fire off his message.

ONLY ONE DECLARATION OF WAR.

The only declaration of war that emanated from Congress or the President of the United States was in June, 1812. On the first day of that month President Madison transmitted his message to Congress on the British war. The bill declaring war originated in the House, and was passed by a vote of 79 to 49, on June 18. The same day the Senate passed the bill by a vote of 19 to 13, which shows that the war sentiment was not unanimous. Since the Chilean situation created such a war feeling in the country, Washington newspaper reporters unearthed the Act of June, 1812, which still stands on the Federal statutes, and is as follows:

"Be it enacted (etc.), that war be and is hereby declared to exist between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the dependencies thereof and the United States of America and their Territories; and that the President of the United States is hereby authorized to use the whole land and naval force of the United States to carry the same into effect, and to issue to private armed vessels of the United States commissions or letters of marque and general reprisal in such form as he may think proper, and under the seal of the United States, against the vessels, goods and effects of the Government of the said United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the subjects thereof."

Another Act was passed by Congress at the same time, giving detailed directions for conducting the war.

CLEVELAND NOT OUT OF THE FIELD.

The New York World says the most absurd constructions have been placed upon a dispatch printed in that paper last Sunday, regarding Mr. Cleveland's attitude toward the Presidency. Because it said authoritatively that the ex-President was considering the advisability of withdrawal, many concluded that his name will not be presented to the National Convention.

The World states it as a positive fact that Mr. Cleveland thought of announcing, probably in the form of a letter, that he must not be regarded as a candidate for a second renomination. He discussed with his intimate friends the wisdom of making this announcement, and is still considering it, but his mind is not made up. He may do so and he may not. That is the whole truth in a nutshell. It is not probable that he will make his final determination known until he returns from Louisiana and has an opportunity to review the situation more carefully with his friends.

It is now stated that the position of Senor Pedro Montt, Chilean Minister at Washington, is seriously compromised at home, he having advised his government all through the controversy that Secretary Blaine constantly give him pacific assurances.

The suit of Edward S. Stokes, of New York, the slayer of Jim Fisk, against J. W. Mackay and Hector D Castro, resulted in a verdict of $88,875 in favor of plaintiff. The case was tried in New York.

BY TELEGRAPH!

News of Importance From Home and Abroad.

Uncle Sam Was Prepared.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—It was openly admitted at the Navy Department to-day, now that there is no longer any reason for concealment, that the Government was fully prepared to enforce its demands against Chili, in case they had not been secured by more pacific methods of negotiation through diplomatic channels. The entire available naval force had been concentrated so as to be able to make an almost concerted attack on the Chilean ports. The Pacific squadron, consisting of the San Francisco, Charleston, Baltimore, Boston and Yorktown, would have been speedily reinforced by the South Atlantic squadron, now at Montevideo, consisting of the Chicago, Atlanta, Bennington and Essex, and the Philadelphia and Concord of the North Atlantic squadron. The Miantonomi, Newark and Vesuvius were held in reserve for possible service and at the same time great stores of coal, ammunition and provisions had been forwarded on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts so that the fleet should be amply supplied in case foreign ports should be closed to them. Arrangements were made for the immediate use of a number of transports and auxilliary cruisers. Four steamships were chartered from the Earl Steamship Company, ladened with coal and sent to Montevideo. The vessels were to be used as colliers, and would ply between the naval fleet and home points. The steamer Benito was chartered for similar service on the Pacific coast and other arrangements made to secure the delivery of 10,000 tons of coal a month at a point convenient for naval vessels. The plans as contemplated was the early seizure of a Chilean port as a base of supplies. These preparations entailed great expense, roughly estimated at about $2,000,000. The Department will now be busy for a long time undoing many of its preparations and restoring the naval establishment to its usual basis.

The Mining and River Committees Meet.

SACRAMENTO, January 28.—The Bee this evening publishes an account of a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the River Convention, and a Committee from the Mining Convention. Among those present were E. J Gregory, R. T. Devlin and Dr. Dixon of Sacramento; Dr. C. E. Stone and A. C. Bingham of Marysville; J. B. Hobson and J. H. Neff of Placer; S. D. Wood of San Joaquin, Hart of Shasta and Edwards of Solano. The discussion took a wide range, and covered the conclusion reached in the deliberation of both conventions. The utmost harmony prevailed and a disposition to work together was manifested in the conclusions reached. The valley representatives insisted upon the assurance that the hydraulic mining shall cease until the Government will provide works that it is hoped and claimed will keep the debris from the rivers. A long discussion followed on the advantage of this proposition, but a special committee from the miners' convention finally agreed that the plan was just. They agreed, but only to themselves as a committee, that they would issue a public announcement to the effect hydraulic mining should be discontinued or not be resumed where it had already ceased, until the Government has progressed as far with its work, according to the plans of the War Department engineers, as to insure the streams against damage from the debris. The understanding was that if any person undertake to prosecute hydraulicing within the indicated period, he will have to stand alone, and need hope for no help or support from the body of miners whom the convention represented. It was agreed further that the delegates to Washington shall work together to secure the appropriations recommended for river improvement. A separate bill will be prepared to provide funds for the proposed Government work and returning representatives from both conventions. They will likewise do all in their power for the passage of the bill.

The Great News Medium.

NEW YORK, January 28.—It was worthy of note that the dispatches to the Associated Press from the special correspondent at Santiago, Chili, the last few days have anticipated all other intelligence from that Capital. On Saturday night last the Associated Press dispatch gave the first conclusive statement that the ultimatum had been sent to Chili; on Sunday night the Associated Press dispatch gave the first intimation that Chili would promptly reply to Mr. Blaine's note, and on Monday night the Associated Press correspondent cabled a synopsis of Chili's reply. No other news association had this news until it was in print in the Associated Press papers. The United States Government itself received the first intimation of the tenor of Chili's reply from the Associated Press dispatch. The Deposition News Association simply appropriated it. The Associated Press is universally recognized as the medium for reaching the American Republic, and when news of prime importance is to be had, it secures this first of all.

The Prize Ring.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 28.—Joe King and Jack Kiernan, San Francisco's middle weights, fought in the Pacific Athletic Club to-night for a purse of $750. A. G. Hales, the well-known Australian sporting authority, was referee. Kiernan won after four rounds of hot slugging, King being unable to withstand his left drives. King was pushed down three times in the last round, Kiernan falling heavily on him.

Tim Driscoll defeated Jerry Riordan in seven rounds. The men were light weights and fought for a purse of $250.

Hale and Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—In the Senate Hale spoke in favor of reciprocity, and after recounting its benefits, said the attacks of the Democrats were mischievious, and unpatriotic and were deadly in effect. This achievement of Republican statesmanship would be carried before the people in the next Presidential canvass and when reciprocity will be accepted as part of our national policy, the Democrats would flock to its support and claim to be the authors of this great achievement.

Hale also attacked Senator Hill for his political record in New York, and after the executive session, the Senate adjourned.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—Allen of Mississippi, speaking of the Chilean question, sharply criticised President Harrison's action in sending his message to Congress before Chili's reply to the ultimatum had been received, and hinted it was done for political effect.

The House adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late Representative Spinola.

Bank Robber Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, January 28.—Henry H. Yard, charged with aiding and abetting Gideon W. Marsh, the fugitive ex-President of the Keystone Bank, in misappropriating the bank's funds, was arrested this morning by the U. S. Deputy Marshal on the affidavit of a U. S. Secret Service officer, who has recently been examining the bank's books.

Divorce Suit Denied.

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., January 28.—Judge Buck to day denied the suit of Richard Tenbroeck, the famous horseman, for a divorce from his wife on the grounds of desertion. His wife proved that she was forced to leave her husband on account of cruelty.

A Small Appropriation Asked.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—General Raum appeared before the sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee to-day and asked for an appropriation for pensions for the next fiscal year of $144,956,000.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauright, N. J.

The District Court was occupied yesterday with the case of McDaual vs. Smith & Marker. It will be continued to-day.

Chinese New Year commenced last evening and will continue one week. It is a combination of Thanksgiving, Christmas and Fourth of July.

The Ohio House of Representatives has passed a resolution favoring a constitutional amendment to elect United States Senators by popular vote.

A steamer, which the Silver State says was being built on the Humboldt to defend Winnemucca from the Cuiceins, has been abandoned, as there is no use for such a craft.

Prof. Cook, of the chair of entomology, Michigan University, will lecture at the University this afternoon. President O. Chute of the Michigan Agricultural College will also be present.

It is reported that a 20-round glove contest for points will take place during the coming week. It is expected that the "mill" will draw a large crowd as the contestants are well known locally as being very expert boxers.

It now transpires that Martin Brazonovich was not crazy when he shot Billy Robson at Soda Springs night before last. The shooting was the result of a quarrel. The latter is very low. Brazonovich was arrested by Hawthorne authorities and placed under $5,000 bonds.

It is announced that General Superintendent Filmore of the Southern Pacific will soon inaugurate a change in the system of running trains. The standard rules of the American Railway Association, which are short and comprehensive, will be substituted for the present rules.

Mrs. B. Timmons, mother of Mrs. J. M. McCormack, is dead. She had been constantly failing since the death of her son, which occurred some weeks ago, and passed away yesterday morning. She was about 68 years of age and leaves two sons and three daughters, two of whom are married.

The Austin Advocate says: There has only been enough snow south of Hot Springs in Smoky, to enable stock to get out to feed and do well. For twenty years the snow has not been too deep south of Hot Springs but that stock did well all Winter. That section is the safest Winter range on the coast.

Dr. J. P. Porter of Napa, Cal., was in town yesterday. The Doctor, it will be remembered, practiced dentistry a number of years in Reno, and married Miss May Cara here, who was then instructor of vocal music at Bishop Whitaker's Seminary. He is thinking seriously of returning to Reno as Mrs. Porter has been unwell since leaving here.

Last evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson was invaded by a number of their friends, who took complete possession of the house for the evening. The invaders took with them a bounteous supply of eatables and all had a very enjoyable time until a late hour. The occasion was the eighth anniversary of their wedding. They were the recipients of many handsome presents.

The average number of patients in the Insane Asylum in 1891 was 186, and the expense of maintaining them, including salaries of officers and attendants, $42,323 78. This shows the cost per day per capita to have been 62¼ cents per day. Will one or more or all of Carson please state how this compares with the cost of maintaining the State Prison? The question is one of interest to every taxpayer.

When the Panama canal was proposed, the cry was raised that it would endanger the lives of millions of human beings. It was argued that the waters on the Pacific side were hundreds of feet higher than on the Atlantic side, and that the rush of waters caused by the difference in the level of the two oceans, would drown all southern North America. It is now ascertained that the surface of water on the Atlantic side of the isthmus is six and one-half feet higher than on the Pacific side.

A Winning Team.

Many could not even obtain standing room. Many who never before signed the pledge signed on those evenings. Mr. Wolfenbarger, the speaker, more than fulfilled our highest expectations as a temperance speaker. Mr. Huckins kept the audience in high good humor.

THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.

"Debtor" Makes More Suggestions on the Subject.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—In your issue of the 27th inst. "American" advocates the demonetization of both gold and silver and the substitution for money of some substance, the supply of which shall be inexhaustible.

Now, Mr. American, while I agree with you that there is not gold and silver enough in the whole world if it was at the disposal of the debtors of this Republic to pay more than twenty per cent. of their debts, yet I do not claim that by wise financial legislation at Washington the debts of the people can be refunded at living rates of interest and both debtor and creditor be protected. Legal tender money being a creation of the Government can and should be as far as possible under Government control. There is no disguising the fact as matters stand under our present financial laws that not only are the debtors hopelessly involved, but the great majority of creditors will be wrecked in the financial convulsion which is sure to come unless averted by wise legislation. I have given the matter much thought and have a theory and no doubt but it will work in practice, that the Government should do the great bulk of the banking and bond holding, and by proper management the interest received would pay a large per cent. of the running expenses of the Government and would not be used as it is at present to build up an arrogant, oppressive bondholding aristocracy, but would revert back to the producers who in time would be able to discharge their obligations and prosperity would reign supreme. For illustration, we will say that silver is fully remonetized and of gold and silver in the United States there would be one billion five hundred million dollars. This would be used as a basis of reserve. If the savings banks can do business and maintain their credit with their depositors on an available supply of legal tender money equal to but five per cent. of their demand obligations, then surely this Government would have much stronger credit even with a less reserve, and could regulate interest as exigencies required. Wage earners and others who did not want to invest in enterprises could deposit their surplus earnings in the Government banks and be sure that the principal would be safe even though it earned a very low rate of interest. While, on the other hand, the producers and debtors could rest assured that the supply of money would always equal the demand and property values would have some stability, and not be played with as a cat does with a mouse, which is done by the money rings at the present time. As I said before, the Government, with a reserve of one billion five hundred million dollars of gold and silver, could emit enough full legal tender money to meet all requirements, assume all just obligations with proper security, and justice would be done to both creditor and debtor and the days of financial slavery will be at an end. DEBTOR.

FREE COINAGE.

A Silver Man's Suggestions on the Subject.

WINNEMUCCA, January 25, 1892,

EDITOR STATE JOURNAL:—The friends of silver in this section of the State most heartily endorse the suggestion of the JOURNAL for Nevada to put up an electoral ticket pledged to vote for no gold bug candidate for President, in the event that both of the great parties nominate such candidates. No sane man expects the Republican party to favor silver. It is pledged, and has been ever since 1873, to the gold bugs to maintain the gold standard, and without the "soap" to manipulate "blocks of five" it cannot secure fifty votes in the electoral college. It is a party necessity for it to maintain the gold standard theory.

Will the Democratic party come to the relief of the country on this question and give us a square silver platform and a square silver candidate for President? Not if the Cleveland wing of the party controls the National Convention.

The silver plank will be the great contention in the Democratic convention. The friends of Cleveland, the gold bugs and the Republican press of the country will use all the influence at their command to squelch the free coinage doctrine in the Chicago convention. If they succeed, then the duty of Nevada is plain—that is to carry out the suggestion of the JOURNAL. If the silver producing States would take such a stand, and do it in time to notify the country east of the Missouri and warn the Democratic party that no electoral vote from these States will be cast for a gold bug candidate, it would probably defeat the gold bug assault on the Democratic convention, and the true sentiments of nine-tenths of the rank and file of the Democratic party be respected by the convention giving us a clean cut silver platform and candidate. With such platform and such candidate, free coinage will be assured.

The Executive Committee appointed by the Carson Silver Convention should meet and take immediate steps in the direction indicated, and confer with all the silver-producing States on the subject, so as to secure concert of action. When the Committee adjourns it should adjourn to meet on the 4th day of July next. It will be then fully advised of the necessary course to be pursued. If neither of the two leading parties give us satisfactory assurances in their platform and candidate, the Committee can at once call a convention to nominate an electoral ticket and such other candidates as it may deem advisable. No friend of silver in Nevada will object to such independent programme on the part of Nevada except it be a few hide-bound partisans of either party who may hope to secure some cross-roads postoffice by remaining loyal to their party, and a few fossilized newspapers which sneeze when their bosses take snuff, and which are partisan for revenue only. NO NONSENSE.

Edwin Barbour, the celebrated actor and playwright, will appear at McKissick's Opera House, February 8th, 9th and 10th.

The New Cathedral in New York.

The picture shows the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, as it will appear, the plans of Messers. Heins & Lafarge, architects of the design shown, having been substantially accepted by the trustees. It will be probably the finest building on this continent. The site for the structure cost $800,000, of which $500,000 was paid cash. It is the desire of the trustees to obtain for the building money enough to yield $200,000 a year interest. This would provide for the cost of both erection and subsequent endowment. The Cathedral will be 520 feet long outside; width across the front, 190 feet; across the transepts, 290 feet. The total height of the structure will be 425 feet, and it will stand on an elevation which will add another hundred feet. Bishop Potter's features are shown in the cut. Under his wise and vigorous administration, the work of providing a Cathedral which will represent worthily the dignity and traditions of the Episcopalian Church has proceeded thus far, and it is hoped that he will live to see the magnificent structure completed. Work will be begun next summer.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

To be Held in Reno, April 6th.

United States Civil Service examinations will be held in Reno, on April 6th, 1892, and on October 5th, 1892, for the Departmental, all branches of the railway mail.

No person can be examined who has not previously filed an application on a blank which may be obtained by writing to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. The applications, carefully and correctly executed, should be forwarded to the Commission in ample time to secure an admission card. A delay in filing the application may result in a failure to obtain an admission card in time to be examined. A pamphlet of instructions will accompany every application blank.

In the Southern States and in the remote Western States the supply of applicants for the railway mail service is not equal to the demand.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

What to Try.

Health Monthly advises people to try several things, among them the following:

Try snuffing powdered borax up the nostrils for catarrh in the head.

Try taking your cod liver oil in tomato catsup if you want to make it palatable.

Try a cloth, wrung out in cold water, put about the neck at night for a sore throat.

Try walking with your hands behind you if you find yourself becoming bent forward.

Try a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) in diarrhoeal troubles; give freely.

Try a newspaper over your chest, beneath your coat, as a chest protector in extremely cold weather.

Move Along.

Don't stand idle. It's the man who keeps moving that generally succeeds in life. You can't help moving on when taking Simmons Liver Regulator. It cleanses the system from all poison and sends the blood through the veins at a good round pace. The Regulator is the best insurance policy against indigestion and dyspepsia. Nothing malarious about Simmons Liver Regulator.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Pleasure and Comfort Combined.

The best arranged bath house and barber shop in the State. During the Winter season I have placed stoves in each bath room so you can take a comfortable bath without the risk of catching cold. Try one and you will be satisfied. C. COLEMAN, tf Virginia street.

Musical and Rhetorical Exercises.

There will be musical and rhetorical exercises at the Reno High School to-day, beginning at 1 o'clock. Debates, music, readings, essays and recitations will constitute the program. The friends and patrons of the school are cordially invited to attend. OTTO WILLIAMS,
President.

JEROME HIGGINS, Secretary.

A New Establishment.

G. Hoskins arrived from San Francisco yesterday morning, where he has been purchasing a first-class stock of undertaking goods, and will be ready for business on February 1st, 1892. Mr. Hoskins is a first class, practical undertaker, funeral director and embalmer, and has established parlors in the fire proof brick building on Plaza street, two doors east of McKissick's Opera House, and solicits a share of the patronage, to whom he will render satisfaction and courteous treatment.

"German Syrup"

A Farmer at Edom, Texas, Says:

"We are six in family. We live in a place where we are subject to violent Colds and Lung Troubles. I have used German Syrup for six years successfully for Sore Throat, Cough, Cold, Hoarseness, Pains in the Chest and Lungs, and spitting-up of Blood. I have tried many different kinds of cough Syrups in my time, but let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best. That has been my experience. If you use it once, you will go back to it whenever you need it. It gives total relief and is a quick cure. My advice to everyone suffering with Lung Troublesis —Try it. You will soon be convinced. In all the families where your German Syrup is used we have no trouble with the Lungs at all. It is the medicine for this country.

THE LIBERTY BELL.

Where Congress met and Freedom flung
Its starry banner to the breeze,
Exultingly its iron tongue
All thro' that summer morning sung
Our new born liberties.

It told the ending of the night,
The happy dawn of freedom's day,
And overland there flashed a light
Of brotherhood and human right,
The end of kingly sway.

Oh, how the good old bell sang out
Of liberty and freedom's birth!
From east to west, from north to south
The message of its metal mouth
Rolled all around the earth!

It told the birthright of the race,
The glory of the brave and free,
And pealing from its sacred place
It set the whole wide world ablaze
With dreams of liberty.

Alas, it utters now no sound,
But yet its echoes ring sublime,
Its resting place is holy ground,
Where Freedom stalks in solemn 'round
Until the end of time.

—Louis Sverre Amonson in Philadelphia Ledger.

Inflammable Goods.

"My business here is to sell things," remarked a middle aged salesman to his friend, as he made a memorandum of a cash sale in his book; "and of course I expect to sell whatever goods people ask for, if I have them in stock. But I do wish they wouldn't come here and buy Canton flannel for curtains and draperies. There is nothing that I sell that makes me so uncomfortable as this. I have had some frightful experiences with these goods, which I suppose have made me unusually nervous about them. There is nothing in the whole range of dry goods so inflammable as the fine grades of Canton flannel. I have had the house set on fire repeatedly because some one lighted a lamp in the vicinity of a Canton flannel drapery. I used to be very fond of this sort of goods, but there is nothing that would induce me now to put up a yard of it in my house. If you want to understand the occasion of my fears, just take a bit of the stuff and hold it near the flame of a lamp. The blaze will travel over it faster than a prairie fire. I have sometimes thought I would positively refuse to sell the goods, but people want them; and I suppose no one would thank me for advice on the subject."—New York Ledger.

Sparrows and Blackbirds.

Birds, notwithstanding their attractiveness in plumage and sweetness in song, are many of them great thieves. When nest building they will steal the feathers out of the nests of other birds, and are often much inclined to drive off other birds from a feeding ground even where there is abundance. This is especially true of one of our greatest favorites, the robin redbreast, who will peck and run after and drive away birds much bigger than himself.

Very different as the robin and the sparrow are in other things, they resemble each other in this. On an early spring morning, when a little touch of frost still made the surface of the earth hard, I have seen a blackbird on a lawn at last after great efforts extract a worm, and this was the signal for a crowd of sparrows, who, by dint of numbers, managed to drive away the blackbird and carry off the worm, to feed their own young ones, no doubt. —Cassell's Magazine.

Descendants of Some Noted Men.

It is noteworthy what a number of men eminent in the era 1861-65 are now represented only in the female line of descent. Neither Abraham Lincoln nor Jefferson Davis has a living grandson. Neither has Andrew Jackson, Thurlow Weed nor Horace Greeley. General Hancock's one son left behind him only a small daughter. There is no representative of General Scott's name. A singular parallel runs betwixt two Confederate generals, Stonewall Jackson and John Morgan, prince of raiders. Each died before the war ended, leaving one fair daughter. The two girls grew up, married happily, bore each a daughter and died soon after giving birth to a second child.—New York Press.

Phosphorescent Infection.

The curious discovery has been made that the phosphorescence frequently exhibited by many species of the crustacea is infectious. A French naturalist, M. Giard, has traced the phosphorescent light in Talitrus to bacteria in the muscles, these muscles always showing signs of disease. On inoculating healthy individuals the same luminous appearance was produced. Each and every inoculated specimen, however, died within seventy-two hours.—St. Louis Republic.

College Girls After a Great Game.

The Smith college girls were differently affected by Yale's victory over Harvard at the annual football game. Some draped their rooms in black and went to the church the next day dressed in deep mourning, and one fasted all day Sunday. Those who bet on Yale gave a banquet, where the dishes were blue, all the table decorations blue and the wall paper one of solid blue, bought and put up purposely for the occasion.—Boston Herald.

A Custom Very Like American.

According to Colonel Rockill, the devils are driven out of the towns in Corea on New Year's eve by firing off guns and crackers. This is a curious parallel, if not an explanation, of the custom of our own New Year's shooters.

Why the Sky Is Flat.

The apparent flattening of the vault of the heavens has been found to have an annual period, and to depend on clouds. It seems least flat with a misty horizon, and less by night than by day —New York Journal.

Semiannual Experience.

A Remarkable Medal.

A gentleman of Canajoharie, N. Y., has a remarkably fine brass medal from an Indian grave there. It is about an inch in length, and has on one side the head of Christ, with the words "Salvator Mundi." On the other side is the Virgin Mary, with the words "Regina Coeli." The engraving is bold and the medal is in a fine state of preservation.—Philadelphia Ledger.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR.

HOW THE HEAD OF A GREAT FAMILY SECURED HIS CAPITAL.

The Butcher Brother of the Great Fur Trader Gave the Pioneer of the West $500 to Be Rid of a Poor Relative—A Princely Fortune Has Been Made Since.

Let me step back a hundred years and tell you about the Astors. I may tell you somethings you did not know. When John Jacob Astor worked his way down the Rhine to the sea and shipped to England away from his slothful, lazy innkeeping father, he stopped in London and went to work for his brother, a successful manufacturer of flutes and pianos, and unless I am very much mistaken, junior partner in what is still the greatest piano making house in England, though there are no Astors in it now.

John Jacob was on his way to America, and only went to England to stop awhile and learn English—a feat which he had not accomplished when he died. When he reached New York city, not very long after the close of the Revolutionary war, he had heard about the fur business and had determined to embark in it. It does not matter whether he peddled a little before that any more than it matters whether Jay Gould sold rat traps before he became a railroad operator.

In time John Jacob apprenticed himself to a fur dealer and learned all the tricks and secrets of the business. But in the meantime he had come to this city for the same reason he had gone to London—he had a brother here. This brother was Henry Astor, and in those days nobody questioned which would be the more successful of the two, for Henry was a mighty and a cunning man in business.

He was a butcher in the Bowery and lived above his store there. He had married a chubby, rosy German woman, of whom he used to boast, "She was der pootiest gal by der Bowery."

THE TWO BROTHERS.

Now the Bowery was no ordinary street, and Henry was no ordinary butcher. The Bowery was the southern termination of the old Boston post road, and down it came the bulk of the produce of the countryside which was eaten in and shipped from New York. Among other things all the cattle came into town on that road on the hoof to be sold to the butchers. Henry knew that and so did all the other butchers, but Henry put his knowledge to practical use. He drove out of town twice a week on market days and met the cattle on the road up in the country. There he bought the best of all the steers and cornered the market. It was he who thereafter set the prices and sold to the other butchers. His young brother, John Jacob, was just as instinct with the speculative spirit, but he had no money to buy with and so he used to borrow of Henry.

Henry did not like that. He distrusted his brother's shrewdness, or else he was close with his money. At any rate he loaned it to John Jacob unwillingly, and finally he met a request for a loan with a bluff "No." He said he would not be bothered any more, but this is what he would do. He would give John Jacob the sum of $500 outright as a gift if John Jacob would sign a paper promising never to ask for the loan of another penny from that date forever. John Jacob jumped at the offer. He took the $500, and perhaps that had more to do with the foundation of the great Astor fortune than any other sum he got in all his life.

THE SPLIT IN THE FAMILY.

I have heard that there are some Astors descendent from Henry living up the Hudson river, and that the great and rich Astors have nothing to do with them. I do not know whether that is true or whether there are such Astors, but if it is true it is all right, for Henry unquestionably parted with the rest of the family deliberately and in cold blood when he paid that sum of money to John Jacob so as not to be bothered by his then poor relations any more.

John Jacob Astor prospered amazingly. He made millions when it was something that nobody else unconnected with royalty appeared able to do, except the Rothschilds in Europe. With those millions, made by putting the entire continent under a tax for its furs, he established not only a landed estate, but a family with a principle, with a fixed purpose.

He was of incalculable service in the development of New York, because he went to districts the city had not reached and built dwellings for persons of moderate means. He built them very well, to last as long as possible, and he rented them for a fair return, thus establishing a moderate system of rentals with all the landlords of the city.

In another generation an unfortunate split occurred, and the estate and the family have since then gone forward in two parts, much the larger part (nearly two-thirds, I believe), going to the descendants of the elder son, and the smaller part to the descendants of a second son. William Waldorf Astor now represents the bulk of the estate, and the little baby, John Jacob, is heir to the smaller part.—John Ralph in Providence Journal.

Asbestus Three Thousand Years Old.

Asbestus differs from nearly all other minerals in being fibrous and textile, dividing into fibers resembling in delicacy those of flax and silk, and can be spun and woven like any other textile fiber, giving a yarn or cloth entirely fireproof and acidproof. Although known in Egypt and elsewhere 3,000 years ago, the practical use of this material in considerable quantities has been delayed to the present age.—India Rubber World.

A Reflective Mind.

The Pioneer Woman Preacher.

I doubt if a hundred of the residents of Elizabeth, N. J., know that Mrs. Antoinette Brown-Blackwell, the pioneer woman preacher of America, lives in their midst. Mrs. Blackwell leads a retired life, but during the coming year she will come before the public again with a book which has engrossed her attention for a number of years past.—Cor. New York Epoch.

BACCILLI IN BLOOD.

Recent experiments as read before the last Congress of Surgeons at Berlin, leave no doubt that the true way to CLEAR THE SYSTEM OF MICROBI is through the pores of the skin. It has been found that a remedy which kills the Microbi will also destroy the life of the patient; but it has also been found that the Microbi can be forced out through the skin, and it is in this way that S.S.S. relieves the system of poison.
